

Relation-family ablation specificity controls

Ablation measures model sensitivity to relation-family removal. It does not establish biological causality. Score-drop magnitudes are interpreted within model and are not directly comparable across architectures.